Enjoying The Psalms

"The reason why Christian people are drawn to the Psalms is that they speak the universal language of the human soul. Whatever our spiritual mood may be, there is sure to be a psalm which reflects it – whether triumph or defeat, excitement or depression, joy or sorrow, praise or penitence, wonder or anger. Above all the Psalms declare the greatness of the living God as Creator, Sustainer, King, Lawgiver, Saviour, Father, Shepherd and Judge. As we come to know Him better through the Psalter, we fall down and worship Him".

(John Stott: Favourite Psalms 1988)

In this free Saturday morning bible teaching workshop Matt Searles will help us navigate around the book of Psalms to find food for our souls and fuel for our worship.

Matt Searles is a returning speaker to this annual bible teaching event at St Chad's having led a Bible Overview workshop for us in January 2024. Matt served in local church ministry in London before being involved for 10 years with training for the South Central Gospel Partnership, Crosslands Seminary and the Union School of Theology. He is the author of several books, including Tumbling Sky: Psalm Devotions for Weary Souls and his recordings of the Psalms are available for streaming. Matt was the co-presenter of the 52 episodes podcast The Bible Overbrew. He and his family live in Kendal.

Registration: For planning purposes, please let us know if you and/or a group from your church plan to attend this free workshop.
